

Atheist's and Christians

People that consider themselves to be Atheists, Christians, Agnostics, and all other beliefs, are all brothers and sisters, one should never discriminate against the other. People that consider themselves to be atheists are generally intelligent and inquisitive people with a need to see beyond their conscious understanding. When their thought process is taken over by self-serving interests it is difficult for them to see beyond consciousness. Faith is the only way to truly transcend conscious understanding. When we reach the limit of concept, logic will enable us to look beyond our conscious understanding because there is no other alternative. We cannot deny eternity. All wisdom resides in the eternal sea of spirituality. When faith brings us in the presence of the Holy Spirit our sense of logic guides us to love and unity as a solution to find peace and serenity, this choice brings us into harmony with the will of our creator, no other alternative is productive and promotes unity with others and creation. If we choose self as a solution, then we separate ourselves from unity with the Holy Spirit, this can be a difficult and lonely way to live. We can't cast blame because we made the choice with our own free will.
